EHO Eclectic Homeschool Online

One home-school parent wrote, “Our eleven-year-old discovered Journey Back in Time at a booth at our local curriculum fair. It didn't take her long to decide that this was something our family had to have. Bear in mind that this child is our reluctant reader, yet reading original news accounts and old children's books had her hooked in a matter of minutes. After hearing her enthusiastic response, I thought I'd check out the site myself, and now that I've had some time to explore I'm in complete agreement. The best way to study history is to read source documents and accounts written by people who were close to the events. Journey Back in Time fits the bill.”

"I would like to recommend the database Journey Back in Time to any library or educator who has need of primary source historical documents. We found the price to be reasonable and the students found that it was easy to navigate the indexed materials. We look forward to the new updates, and appreciate the service."

EDUCATORS

"As a university professor with over ten years teaching experience, I would have no hesitation in recommending Journey Online for teachers, students, and their families. Journey Online is a unique collection of primary resource material that would be of use to anyone interested in our country's heritage, including its origin, development and current status."

David M. Olsen, Ph.D.

"Journey Back in Time would be a very useful resource in our schools and libraries."

Georgia M. Loutensock

Utah State Office of Education

"Journey Back in Time is an essential learning tool for the student, historian and writer. Primary source material is becoming more scarce everyday and is vital to the understanding and interpretation of historical events. Journey Online's extensive collection of historical newspapers and documents gives students access to the true records and accounts of important events of our country's past."
